Did you know that the sand in your filter needs to be replaced very five years to ensure maximum performance? Over time, the filtration causes water channels to form in the filter sand which means it runs less effectively. There are a number of key processes involved in changing sand, and to ensure peace of mind, our technicians can undertake this for you – and at the same time make sure the rest of the pool is checked and serviced.

Crystallite glass media is rapidly taking over as the desired filter media. Feedback and results provide glowing response from pool owners who have been using this product. Crushed glass media which can very easily be used in place of regular filter sand, ensures that the filtration properties are far superior to sand, with the added convenience of not having to upgrade any equipment. It is totally compatible with any sand filter. Glass works in much the same way as sand, but with many distinct advantages. It forms a “silt layer” in the filter tank similar to that of river banks or the beach when you see the debris collected by the sand. Contact us today for more details on the latest in filtration technology.
