Aquashield3 assists in removing existing scale from pool walls particularly ceramic aggregate finishes. It also creates superb clarity in the water by ensuring calcium remains in solution and will keep build up on salt chlorinators soft. Pools using bore or dam water should use Aquashield 3 to ensure that metals remain in solution and don't stain the surface.

Importance of a Balanced Pool

One of the most important steps of swimming pool maintenance is water balance. Generally, understanding water balance can also be one of the most confusing processes of pool maintenance. Because of its complexity, some new pool owners may not know everything they have to do to keep their pool water safe, comfortable and corrosion free.

Below are a few of the reasons why having a balanced swimming pool is so important:

Safety

If you have either a salt-based pool producing chlorine or a chlorine-based pool using stabilized tablets, then your PH needs to be correct. If pool water is not balanced correctly then the chlorine sanitiser won't be working at full strength killing germs and bacteria.

Comfort

The feel of the water on your eyes and skin is directly affected by the water balance being correctly adjusted. People's skin & eyes need the PH to be neutral in order to feel comfortable. This is one of the main components of water balance but there are a few more things that need to be considered.

Corrosion

If your pool water is not balanced correctly then it could be corrosive to the liner, ladders & handrails, and other equipment such as the pump.

What is entailed in Water Balance?

Keeping your PH, Alkalinity, Calcium Hardness, Stabiliser levels & Salt / Total Dissolved Solids within the proper range is not only important for swimmer comfort, it's also important for keeping your equipment and pool in good condition.
